HIGH CATHOLIC CHURCHMEN DEPORTED

BY MEXICAN GOVERNMENT ARE NOW ON WAY TO BORDER

Nation Now Virtually Without Dignitary of Church—Archbishop and Party Banished From the Country—Apostolic Delegate Asks Citizens of America To Suspend Judgment On Train Outrage Alleged By Calles To Have Been Led By Priests.

Six of the foremost members of Catholic Episcopate have been ordered out of Mexico and are on their way to Laredo, Texas, says the Mexico City Dispatch.

The deported churchmen are: Most Rev. Jose Maria Y. Del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico; Most Rev. Leopoldo Ruiz Y. Flores, archbishop of Michoacan, and Bishops Salvador Uranga, of Cuernavaca; Ignazio Valdespino Y. Diaz, of Aguascalientes; Gerardo Anaya, of Chipapas; and Jose Maria Echeverria, of Saltillo. Archbishop del Rio was head of the Roman Catholic Episcopacy in Mexico.

The government's drastic action follows upon recent charges made by General Alvarez, chief of Presidencia P. Elias Calles' staff, that the Catholic Episcopate was the chief cause of the religious unrest, and had been directing the revolution and inspiring such outrages as that Tuesday night against a passenger train in the state of Jalisco, when 100 persons were slaughtered.

The government already has made public reports received by it alleging that three Catholic priests and one delegate of the League for the Defense of Religious Liberty were the ringleaders in the Jalisco outrage.

The expulsion of the six prelates, with Bishop Pascual Diaz, of Tabasco expelled three months ago and Francisco Orozco Y Jimenez, of Guadalajara, who is in hiding, removes all the foremost church leaders from activity in Mexico.

Other prelates still in various parts of the republic also are in hiding, and not a few of the religious leaders from time to time have made their way out of Mexico.

Concurrently with the government's move against the episcopate a strict censorship was established over all cablegrams and telegrams. The newspapers so far have abstained from publishing other than official information on the Guadalajara train attack.

Catholic circles in Mexico continue to make denial of the government charge that the Catholic episcopate was behind the Jalisco train outrage, and that Catholic priests were on the scene.

Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States announced Friday that he was "certain that the Mexican hierarchy had nothing to do either directly or indirectly" with the attack by a band of outlaws upon a Mexican passenger train, in which the train was set on fire and many passengers either slain or burned to death.

Archbishop Biondi said: "My first request to the American public in this matter is that judgment be suspended until definite and reliable details are available."

"The only news we have to date is from government sources," he declared, "and, as every one knows, all dispatches from Mexico are rigorously censored by the Calles government whose officials decide what can and must be sent out to the press."

"In these circumstances it is only the part of wisdom to defer final judgment until trustworthy information is at hand."

"However, I can absolutely deny the charge of President Calles carried in press dispatches that the Mexican hierarchy is responsible for the attack. The charge is without foundation and a result of the bitter hatred of President Calles for the Catholic church. The bitterness of the president of Mexico and his utter lack of logic must be evident to every one who reads his statement.

"Because three priests led the attacking party, as he asserts, then we must conclude that the Catholic church of Mexico is responsible for the massacre. Moreover, in a manner wholly unworthy the head of a civilized state, President Calles recklessly asserts that this attack is another evidence of what he implies is the systematic tyranny of the Catholic church."

"It is a notorious fact that President Calles has over a long period of time, employed every means at his command to make the church appear responsible for the present revolution in Mexico. Under this pretext he has imprisoned bishops, killed priests has ordered shot without trial Catholic men. The names of these victims of his persecuting mania have been given to the public press."

Mexican embassy officials later said the statement by the Apostolic delegate did not deny but appeared to confirm the report that the attack upon the train was led by three Catholic priests.

RULER OF PAGEANT

FORD STOLEN

A Ford touring car owned by Floyd Redman, of West Ohio street, was stolen Friday evening from in front of the Memorial hall. It is thought that someone who attended the colored folk's dance wanted to get back to Columbus and the car was the easiest way to get there, so it was just borrowed for the occasion.

Height of Quietude

A silence room so perfectly sound-proof for testing cases of deafness that the beat of the heart and the "click" of the eyelid when quickly closed and opened can be heard is one of the features of the new Royal Ear hospital, London.

An American flag taken from the "Pass of Bahama" when it was seized by the Germans, eventually to become the mascot for Count Luckner's raider, was returned to the owner recently in New York by Count Luckner.

Lost Certificate

Mary Elizabeth Baker has filed a civil action in common pleas court against the Citizens Telephone company to compel them to issue to her a certificate of stock for twenty shares of preferred stock, that she claims she purchased of the company and which was not delivered. It seems the certificate for the purchase of twenty shares of stock was delivered to G. A. Schleyer and was mailed by the latter May 27, 1926 to the plaintiff at her rural address. The certificate, the plaintiff claims was never received, and she now asks the court to compel the company to issue her another certificate to take the place of the lost certificate.

The Books of the Professor

By AD. SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

"Of course," they said, "he writes and sometimes he paints pictures, but as for real work that is useful in the world and brings in the bread and butter, it is something he knows nothing about."

He was so gentle and unassuming and his ventures into the Comptonville life were so few that he came to be regarded with a detached affection as a worthy and fragile institution. The Professor gave the town a certain distinction. On any evening he could be seen sitting in his library, bending over a book, while from cases on the walls stared the backs of impressive volumes. No visitor in Comptonville ever escaped this evening walk, and the opportunity to see the Professor who stood for learning and culture even as much as would a college.

It occurred to no one to question the Professor's financial standing. Long ago men had ceased to wonder how he could live by his pen when others had hard work making ends meet with their two hands and a shovel. The Professor was always dressed neatly, his white beard was ever combed to silky softness, and his step was confident.

Occasion for comment came when the Professor formed a new habit, that of monthly visits to the city. With two heavy suitcases he went to the station early in the morning. In the evening when he returned it was noticed the suitcases were lighter. Of his trips, of what he saw or why he went, the Professor never had a word, and there was none who dared ask him. In time the town's curiosity concerning the excursions died out and they were regarded as no more than incidents in a life that was ordered and simple.

The Professor sat in his library with the shades full up. When he heard steps on the sidewalk he smiled, knowing that he was being observed. Save to bend a little more intently over his book he gave them no notice, and yet this stood for his life, his place in Comptonville, and his most satisfying experiences.

"I won't let them know I am poor. I won't surrender. I will stick it out until the last..." He looked around his library and at the cases, solid rows of books.

It did not help when the Professor had to hire a boy to carry the suitcases to the train. Men noticed that his step was slow but his eyes still sparkled and his head was erect. In the daytime it was seen his shades were drawn and there were stories that he was ill and resting, but in the evening he sat with his books, with the light burning, and with the town to watch.

There came a day when the boy had but one suitcase to carry, and that evening, when the Professor returned, his feet dragged and his head was bowed. In his room he spread a small amount of money before him.

"The last," said the Professor, "when this is gone I will have to apply for help." Then he picked up a book, went to his library, and seated himself in front of the window.

"If I go down," he said, "I'll go down fighting."

And the light burned all night. A milkman saw it in the early morning, and when the town awakened a disquieting rumor spread. To the Professor's house they went, but no one would respond to the bell. Then they forced a window, opened the door, and admitted a nervous, fearful volunteer committee.

There he was in his library, with a book in his lap. The Professor had stuck it out to the end, had died without admitting defeat. There was a hushed and awkward moment. Some one moved to return the book to a case. Then it was discovered that all of these volumes which stared to the world and gave to the Professor that setting which he loved, were painted on the glass of the cases. The book which was in his lap was his last. They remembered the suitcases and the trips to the city.

"He has been selling them off," some one spoke the feeling of the group. "Little by little he has been parting with them and it broke his heart to do it." Now when they speak of the Professor they picture him copying on the glass of his bookcases the backs and titles of those volumes which he was forced to give up, and say, "He was a queer man, the Professor, but spunky."

One Too Many

Italian Consul Sicilian said at a luncheon in San Francisco:

"We had too many political parties in Italy in the past. Instead of two parties in our house and senate, as you have, we had nearly twenty-two, and so there could be no majority, and nothing could get done. Hence Fascism."

NINETY-NINE

PERSONS

Out of Every Hundred in Circleville Are in Favor of Deep-Well Instead of Darby Creek or Scioto River Drinking Water.

The editorial published in The Circleville Herald Thursday regarding Circleville's contaminated Water Supply struck a responsive chord in ninety-nine out of every hundred persons in the city up to the present writing.

There are plenty of places, east of Circleville, where absolutely pure drinking water could be secured from deep-wells and where sufficient stand-pipe pressure could be secured for fire protection.

Until further notice from the State Board of Health or Health Commissioner Louis Schneider, people who depend on the water from the Supply Company will be safe in BOILING IT.

A prominent citizen suggests as a precautionary measure, that the health authorities compel the Water Supply company to flush their mains and empty the stand-pipe of Scioto river water.

City Solicitor Weldon per instructions from City Council, visited the State Board of Health Thursday relative to the local water supply. The department informed the Solicitor that Circleville people would be on the safe side of the proposition if they would continue to BOIL IT.

Manager Denman, of the Water Supply Co., informed the Solicitor that the Company was installing a chloradine apparatus at the plant to purify the water.

Double Shift

At a club a man who had applied in vain for membership was being discussed. "I have heard that he is unscrupulous to an unusual degree," said one member. "Unscrupulous?" returned another. "If that fellow were to reform, he would have to put in overtime feeling remorse."—Boston Transcript.

SEAPLANE

FALLS WITH TWO NAVAL CADETS

Believed That They Were Unable To Free Themselves From Seat Straps.

Newport News, Va., April 21.—A seaplane from Hampton Roads naval air station, carrying Wilbur Bingham and Richard W. Kemison, naval cadet fliers, fell in Hampton Roads today near Fort Wool. The plane disappeared after striking the water and searchers were unable to find trace of the men.

It was assumed that they had been unable to free themselves from the seat straps. Persons ashore who witnessed the crash believed the plane struck a fishing stake in taking off and that it probably tore a hole in the pontoon.

Bingham is from New York and Kemison from Watertown, Pa. They had made several short flights around the naval base before the crash.

ROBS NAVIGATION

OF ITS TERRORS

Formula Makes Sun Observations Unnecessary.

Washington.—Many stirring tales have been suggested by the terrors which beset shipwrecked seamen, unable to determine their position.

Their plight has usually been due to inability to observe the sun at noon, solar time. Now, however, naval authorities in all parts of the world are showing great interest in a formula worked out by Rev. Alan S. Hawkesworth of the Protestant Episcopal church, who served as a mathematician in the navy's bureau of ordnance during the World war.

"By sextant observation on the two stars forming the pointer of the Great Bear, or the uprights of the Southern Cross," he explains, "a navigator can tell his exact position at any moment during the night. And castaway sailors with no sextant or other instrument can approximately but definitely tell their position within ten or fifteen miles, thus avoiding the horrors of aimless drifting."

"In the northern hemisphere, for instance, imagine a huge clock face around the Pole star, with twelve above and six below—in the usual fashion. Take as our hour hand upon this imaginary clock face the stars called the 'pointers' and the Great Bear or Dipper.

"Read the hour indicated thereby, and add to it the number of months, and fractions of the month, elapsed since January 1. Double this sum, and subtract it from 25 1/4 or 28 1/4 or 4 1/4, the test for which of these three constants we must use being that the remainder must be positive, yet less than 24. The result will be the true solar time—reckoned from midnight—with 12 to 24 for p. m. time."

Joseph W. Adkins,
Probate Court.
14julyd&wtf.

We're handicapped some at this writing on account of our old rock-ing chair broke down the other day and to keep from standing up, we're trying to use a dining room chair that has a lot of sharp knobs all over the back, which same must have been put there so as to keep company from staying at the table too long.
And if our language seems strained at any point, it's because we can't relax without being gouged.

Uncle Bill Bobbitt got one of his thumbs sprained tolerably bad last week while he was showing some of our young boys what a good baseball catcher he used to be.

Andrew Allen is making his annual and unsuccessful effort to get grass to grow on some bare spots in his yard. He's been working at it for several years now, and says he's tried everything except hair tonic and maybe he'll put on some of that next.

Joe Dodds started in yesterday to repaint his old automobile and thought maybe he could make it look fairly respectable again. But before he had proceeded very far, somebody from the city drove it for a while, he didn't have any heart to go ahead trying to make his old flivver look like anything.

Will Deal, one of our realtors, had some parties from Albany here Tuesday looking at two lots he has for sale. But they didn't buy, and Will is now trying hard to forget about the big dinner he paid for at the Grand hotel.

Mrs. Howard Evans finally got Howard started last Friday to building a frame for the vines around their porch like she's wanted for a long time, and to show her appreciation, she ordered a big beefsteak for Howard's dinner. But when she went out in a little while and found that he had broke down one of her best vines, it fretted her so that she went in and cancelled the beef order.

Enoch Budd got his garden spaded up last week by telling several of our boys that it was a mighty fine place to find fishing bait, and that if they wanted to dig there he didn't have any objections.

There was some talk in the barber shop the other day about how many storms there have been around over the country this spring and somebody explained that the cause of it is a low pressure in the atmosphere.
And Grover Morgan said right away that he's noticed it has taken him longer than common here lately to pump up the tires on his automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thomas took dinner with the Milton Hall family last Sunday and Mrs. Thomas was considerably embarrassed at the table when Ed forgot himself and started to stack up his dishes when he got thru like she's learned him to do at home.

Wesley Mills bought some things in Frank Partle's store last Thursday and somehow Frank gave him back a dollar too much change. Wesley went out and walked around a while to be sure of not doing anything hasty, but he hadn't gone far before he decided that he could make another dollar easier than he could carry that weight on his conscience, and he hurried right back with it.

Harley Burton's wife has been trying hard to train him so he can say no once in a while when somebody tries to sell him something. She thought she was making some headway, but yesterday when he went in to Sam Price's barber shop to get a hair cut, he let Sam talk him into spending 75c again for extras.

Some of our deepest thinkers were talking recently that in the end a man generally gets all that coming to him. And Joe Green, who runs one of our grocery stores and does a credit business, said he'd feel a lot relieved if he could be sure of that.

Death Knells

"Customs of Mankind" says that the ringing of bells or death knells for the deceased is very ancient. Bells themselves are very old, dating back many centuries before Christ—indeed, going back even farther than the biblical record. In ancient times bells were rung only when important people died, but with the coming of Christianity it was the custom to ring death bells "for all good Christians."

Provide for Education

In preparing a budget, the sum for education varies with the ages and needs of the family. It should include tuition, carfare, textbooks and supplies. The family which has caught the big spirit of budgeting will plan in advance for college years when the educational demands are heavy.

AMUSEMENTS

Buster Keaton has taken his frozen face into the prize ring. At least, he masquerades as a pugilist, gets himself involved in a peck of trouble and finally has to fight the world's champion. And what a fight it is!

The famous comedian's hilarious venture into the realms of fistiana forms the basis of the plot of "Battling Butler," Keaton's latest picture now showing at the Met theater. Heralded at Buster's crowing achievement in laugh provoking, "Battling Butler" is living up to its promise by convulsing audiences at every performance.

"Battling Butler" is different; it has as absorbing plot and is invested with elaborate settings that would do credit to the biggest cast, including captivating Sally O'Neil, Snitz Edwards, Tow Wilson, Francis McDonald, Mary O'Brien, Eddie Bordon and Buddy Fine is excellent.

The comedy gives Buster the opportunity to again show his versatility. He portrays a rich young idler who falls in love and then has to pose as a prize fighter in order to win the girl, whose family believes him to be weakling because of his fine clothes, valet and luxurious surroundings. The comedian takes the name of "Battling Butler," but when the real "Battler" appears on the scene, Buster finds himself hopelessly tangled in the web of deception. How he finally triumphs and whips the champion in a vicious battle that makes the fight in the original "Spoilers" look like a petting party, provides a sensational climax in which thrills vie with mirthful moments.

"Battling Butler" was produced by Joseph M. Schenck for Metro-Goldwyn release.

Those who are able to afford a high powered car have but little use for the water wagon.

Danger in Gasoline

Gasoline generates its own spark of fire through friction, such as that caused by washing in a machine, and even though there is no other flame produced, the machine, the cleaning fluids and the garments are quite capable in themselves of causing a terrific explosion. How Do You Choose Shoes?

Do you select shoes which will be smart and becoming and entirely suited to your needs?—or simply because they happen to be the newest fad?

In a season when so many styles are brought forth, it is very wise to choose your shoes for definite purposes, or to wear with certain costumes. For, after all, being "well dressed" depends upon your own attractiveness. And clothes, or shoes chosen in that way, will always give greater pleasure.

Writing by Wireless

It will soon be possible for messages transmitted by wireless telephone and telegraph to be reproduced in facsimile. For over a year experiments have been conducted by Mr. G. M. Wright, an Englishman, who now announces that his system is nearly complete. Wireless messages will soon be transmitted and received in the sender's handwriting.

This method will result in a great saving in time and lessen costs, for instead of preparing and developing the sensitive plates by which the present photograph and facsimile writing is transmitted, it will be possible to place the original writing direct into the transmitting apparatus. This will be reproduced at the other end almost simultaneously.

CIRCLEVILLE EAGLESReady For Plain City Invasion Next Sunday.

For the first time in the history of base ball, the Plain City club will invade Circleville and battle the F. O. E. team. The Plain City entry is picked by the experts to be one of the top-notchers in the Central Ohio League this year. On their roster are such stars as Frank Nesser, Bob Rapp, Mike Albanese, Emmett Near, Jackson and Abbie Burgoon. If the Eagles can turn back this club they can be expected to finish in the first division this season.

With the signing of Stanley Pratt, of Lancaster, for third base, the F. O. E. have completed one of the best clubs ever to represent old Roundtown.

Local fans are back of the club this year as they have never been before and one of the largest crowds ever to witness a game in Circleville is expected at Mason's Park next Sunday.

The new uniforms will be ready for Sunday's game and the club will make a very attractive

A watch may never lose a second yet be many years slow

The owner of such a watch may never miss a train or an appointment but it is the one false note in his modern makeup, probably the only thing he has that stamps him as a bit old-fashioned, a trifle behind the times. For Elgin is conceded to be the world's standard for watch integrity.

CLOUDS SAVE FRUIT

The fact that the sky remained overcast with clouds until 5 o'clock this morning saved the fruit and early vegetables from total destruction. The temperature at 5 p. m. Wednesday as reported by Dr. H. R. Clarke, the local weatherman, stood at 67 degrees and at the same time last evening it was down to 35 degrees.

Yesterday afternoon shortly after two o'clock the sun was shining brightly and a wrap was almost unnecessary and in less than one hour anyone who ventured out without one was wishing for it. "April showers bring May flowers" is an old adage but we have never heard of them bringing such weather before.

However, it could have been worse, the sky might have cleared last night and a frost have taken all the fruit.

Snow was flying shortly before noon today.

A lie makes a quickget-a-way and never stops to look back.

Plan by State to Light the Heavily Traveled Highways

The top picture shows a well lighted highway in Michigan, equipped with incandescent lamps, spaced every 350 or 400 feet; below shows electricity grinding feed and shelling corn for this Ohio farmer on the Marysville-Columbus highway.

LIGHTING ROADS MEANS
ELECTRICITY ON FARMS

With Poles Placed Along Highways
Lines Can Be Strung to Farms at Little Expense.

The possibilities of electricity becoming the cheap and efficient hired man of the farmers of Ohio now rests in a bill before the State legislature which provides for the lighting of the country highways by the state under much the same plan as new roads are built and kept in repair.

If this bill becomes a law, and the farmers are expressing themselves as 100 percent for its enactment, pole lines will be placed along the main highways to carry electricity to light the road. This expense taken care of by the state from the general highway funds, it will be an easy and inexpensive matter to have wires strung from these poles into the farm buildings along the way.

"Advantages of electricity on the farm are hard to enumerate because they are so many," D. C. Ramsower, director of agriculture extension service of Ohio State University, who is interested in the lighting plan both from a safety standpoint and the great help it will be to the farmers, explained. "Right here in Ohio on the Marysville highway, 25 miles from Columbus, a dozen or more farmers are learning first hand what an economical and efficient servant electricity is today. A section about 5 1/2 miles along this highway has been electrified and thus far more than 200 electrical appliances are in use by these farmers. No longer do these farmers have to pump and carry water. They have running water in their barns as well as their houses, some even have bath tubs and water softeners just as they have in the cities. There are no more blue Mondays for the wives of these farmers. Instead of rubbing and scrubbing over hot, steaming tubs, electric washing machines are doing this work.

"Out in the barns electricity is also helping to do the chores, pumping the water for the cattle, milking the cows, grinding the feed, in fact portable motors which can be easily moved about any place, are doing much of the hard work.

"Then when darkness arrives, instead of all members clattering around the dim light of the kerosene lamp, always dangerous and many times foul smelling, these farmers merely push a button in the wall and like magic their rooms are flooded with light.

"These are but a few of the labor savers and modern conveniences on these farms right here in Ohio," Mr. Ramsower continued. "To some, I suppose, these things will sound extravagant. But that is not the case and the farmers out on the Marysville highway will bear me out in declaring from practical use they are convinced electricity is the farmer's most reliable and cheapest hired man.

Not Named From "Weed"

It is sometimes thought that Port Tobacco river took its name from tobacco, in which a thriving business was done on this river. It is said, however, that such is not the case—that the name came from a tribe of Indians who once lived in that vicinity, the Portobacks.

Communism is a sure cure for communism.

Began Great Library

The first university library in Oxford was founded in 1820 by Thomas Cobham, bishop of Worcester. In 1893 Sir Thomas Bodley took upon himself the cost of making the university library "fit & handsome with seats & shelves & desks, and all that may be needed . . . being thoroughly persuaded that I could not busy myself to better purpose."

DEMOCRATIC POLITICS DISCUSSED BY MARVIN

Governor Donahey May Seek To Succeed Fess As United States Senator—Martin L. Davey Most Likely Candidate For Governorship If Present Chief Executive Does Not Ask For Fourth Term.

When Thomas E. Dye, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, resigned from the office a few days ago, he gave a partial explanation of his reason in a letter made public. In this he referred in a covert way, to the refusal of Governor Donahey to cooperate with him in a manner he felt was for the best interests of the party. To even the casual reader it was evident that back of the resignation lay a feeling that it was not possible for him and the governor to work together in anything like a spirit of harmony and since the governor would not resign, the thing for him to do, if the Democratic party was not to suffer, was to give up the chairmanship of the executive committee and allow another to assume the burden he was glad to lay down.

It has transpired since the issuance of his letter of resignation and release of the chairmanship duties, that the message which the public read was mild in comparison with what Mr. Dye originally wrote and intended to have printed. It is this was far more outspoken in calling attention to things which had taken place between him and the governor, things of a nature which made it impossible for him to continue at the head of the executive committee. This original copy was read to a number of Mr. Dye's friends and at their suggestion, fearing the effect it would have upon the party at large was blue penciled and delayed until but little of the first red coloring was left.

The resignation, however, was not unexpected to those who have been in intimate association with Mr. Dye for some time. It was known that the relation between him and the governor were strained. It is said he had threatened to resign at different times before he finally took the step but was restrained by those high in the counsels of the party, because it was feared the effect upon the rank and file of the Democracy of the state would be had. In difference to their advice he put off what he long felt would be inevitable, until he realized that any further endeavor to establish harmonious relations was useless. Then he resigned. In doing what he did Mr. Dye undoubtedly gave satisfaction to a large number of prominent men in his party who have been waiting for a break between the two leaders and welcomed it as a sign that the leadership of the governor had perhaps had at last been threatened. Out of it all there can hardly be the expectancy that the former chairman will joyously support the governor for another term as chief executive or any other office to which he may aspire. The break between them seems to be final and complete.

This leads to a feeling, which has become generally accepted here as well grounded in fact, that the governor is sincere in his declaration of not seeking another term in his present office but is casting his eye towards the United States senatorship as the successor to Simeon D. Fess, when the term of the latter expires in March, 1929. While the governor has not made open declaration to this intention he has not pulled at the bit or shied when the proposition of his availability was suggested to him but has rather taken it with good grace and given declaration to the things he would advocate if his path of political preferment ever led to Washington and he found his feet resting beneath a senatorial desk. He would stand for the people as a whole and follow the same guiding star which had always shaped his destinies, that of common honesty and a black eye for those who attempted to put anything over that savored of crookedness or doubt dealing.

Since the governor seems fixed in his determination not to be the only man ever made chief executive in Ohio four times in succession and perhaps influenced by a feeling that in this instance the part of wisdom would be not to test the pulse of the voters, the Democratic leaders are casting eyes around to find a man they feel will have the best chance of carrying the state next year. They have gone thru the list of available men with scrutinizing care and weighed each in the balance to see in what element he failed to turn the scales in the right direction. Unless every sign fails and all the prophets are wrong, the next Democratic nominee for governor will be Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, national representative from the 14th Ohio district. He more than any other seems to meet requirements.

The Republicans are showing a spirit of cooperation and harmony, which has been lacking in the past several state campaigns, especially with regard to the head of the ticket. A disposition is being shown to follow the advice of State Chairman Fred W. Warner, and reach a definite understanding as to the outstanding man to nominate for governor, before the primaries and center all strength on him. There are any number of good and highly qualified candidates mentioned among whom are Congressman James T. Beggs, of the 13th Ohio district; Congressman John G. Cooper, of the 19th district; Myers Y. Cooper nominee in the last election; Colonel Carmi Thompson, nominee in 1924; former Secretary of State Thad Brown; Attorney General Edward Turner, former Supreme Judge George Clark; State Senator Chester C. Bolton and others. The list could be extended indefinitely. But the consciousness of the poor results which follow a large list of candidates and the resultant divisions in the party is making itself manifest and the advisory council has awakened to the realization that harmony is paramount to everything else and if it is attained the chief stumbling block to a victory at the polls has been removed.

HIGH CATHOLIC CHURCHMEN DEPORTED

BY MEXICAN GOVERNMENT ARE NOW ON WAY TO BORDER

Nation Now Virtually Without Dignitary of Church—Archbishop and Party Banished From the Country—Apostolic Delegate Asks Citizens of America To Suspend Judgment On Train Outrage Alleged By Calles To Have Been Led By Priests.

Six of the foremost members of Catholic Episcopate have been ordered out of Mexico and are on their way to Laredo, Texas, says the Mexico City Dispatch.

The deported churchmen are: Most Rev. Jose Maria Y. Del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico; Most Rev. Leopoldo Ruiz Y. Flores, archbishop of Michoacan, and Bishops Salvador Uranga, of Cuernavaca; Ignazio Valdespino Y. Diaz, of Aguascalientes; Gerardo Anaya, of Chipapas, and Jose Maria Echeverria, of Saltillo. Archbishop del Rio was head of the Roman Catholic Episcopacy in Mexico.

The government's drastic action follows upon recent charges made by General Alvarez, chief of Presidencia P. Elias Calles' staff, that the Catholic Episcopate was the chief cause of the religious unrest, and had been directing the revolution and inspiring such outrages as that Tuesday night against a passenger train in the state of Jalisco, when 100 persons were slaughtered.

The government already has made public reports received by it alleging that three Catholic priests and one delegate of the League for the Defense of Religious Liberty were the ringleaders in the Jalisco outrage.

The expulsion of the six prelates, with Bishop Pascual Diaz, of Tabasco expelled three months ago and Francisco Orozco Y Jimenez, of Guadalajara, who is in hiding, removes all the foremost church leaders from activity in Mexico.

Other prelates still in various parts of the republic also are in hiding, and not a few of the religious leaders from time to time have made their way out of Mexico.

Concurrently with the government's move against the episcopate a strict censorship was established over all cablegrams and telegrams. The newspapers so far have abstained from publishing other than official information on the Guadalajara train attack.

Catholic circles in Mexico continue to make denial of the government charge that the Catholic episcopate was behind the Jalisco train outrage, and that Catholic priests were on the scene.

Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States announced Friday that he was "certain that the Mexican hierarchy had nothing to do either directly or indirectly" with the attack by a band of outlaws upon a Mexican passenger train, in which the train was set on fire and many passengers either slain or burned to death.

Archbishop Biondi said: "My first request to the American public in this matter is that judgment be suspended until definite and reliable details are available."

"The only news we have to date is from government sources," he declared, "and, as every one knows, all dispatches from Mexico are rigorously censored by the Calles government whose officials decide what can and must be sent out to the press."

"In these circumstances it is only the part of wisdom to defer final judgment until trustworthy information is at hand."

"However, I can absolutely deny the charge of President Calles carried in press dispatches that the Mexican hierarchy is responsible for the attack. The charge is without foundation and a result of the bitter hatred of President Calles for the Catholic church. The bitterness of the president of Mexico and his utter lack of logic must be evident to every one who reads his statement.

"Because three priests led the attacking party, as he asserts, then we must conclude that the Catholic church of Mexico is responsible for the massacre. Moreover, in a manner wholly unworthy the head of a civilized state, President Calles recklessly asserts that this attack is another evidence of what he implies is the systematic tyranny of the Catholic church."

"It is a notorious fact that President Calles has over a long period of time, employed every means at his command to make the church appear responsible for the present revolution in Mexico. Under this pretext he has imprisoned bishops, killed priests has ordered shot without trial Catholic men. The names of these victims of his persecuting mania have been given to the public press."

Mexican embassy officials later said the statement by the Apostolic delegate did not deny but appeared to confirm the report that the attack upon the train was led by three Catholic priests.

The Books of the Professor

By AD. SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

"Of course," they said, "he writes and sometimes he paints pictures, but as for real work that is useful in the world and brings in the bread and butter, it is something he knows nothing about."

He was so gentle and unassuming and his ventures into the Comptonville life were so few that he came to be regarded with a detached affection as a worthy and fragile institution. The Professor gave the town a certain distinction. On any evening he could be seen sitting in his library, bending over a book, while from cases on the walls stared the backs of impressive volumes. No visitor in Comptonville ever escaped this evening walk, and the opportunity to see the Professor who stood for learning and culture even as much as would a college.

It occurred to no one to question the Professor's financial standing. Long ago men had ceased to wonder how he could live by his pen when others had hard work making ends meet with their two hands and a shovel. The Professor was always dressed neatly, his white beard was ever combed to silky softness, and his step was confident.

Occasion for comment came when the Professor formed a new habit, that of monthly visits to the city. With two heavy suitcases he went to the station early in the morning. In the evening when he returned it was noticed the suitcases were lighter. Of his trips, of what he saw or why he went, the Professor never had a word, and there was none who dared ask him. In time the town's curiosity concerning the excursions died out and they were regarded as no more than incidents in a life that was ordered and simple.

The Professor sat in his library with the shades full up. When he heard steps on the sidewalk he smiled, knowing that he was being observed. Save to bend a little more intently over his book he gave them no notice, and yet this stood for his life, his place in Comptonville, and his most satisfying experiences.

"I won't let them know I am poor. I won't surrender. I will stick it out until the last..." He looked around his library and at the cases, solid rows of books.

It did not help when the Professor had to hire a boy to carry the suitcases to the train. Men noticed that his step was slow but his eyes still sparkled and his head was erect. In the daytime it was seen his shades were drawn and there were stories that he was ill and resting, but in the evening he sat with his books, with the light burning, and with the town to watch.

There came a day when the boy had but one suitcase to carry, and that evening, when the Professor returned, his feet dragged and his head was bowed. In his room he spread a small amount of money before him.

"The last," said the Professor, "when this is gone I will have to apply for help." Then he picked up a book, went to his library, and seated himself in front of the window.

"If I go down," he said, "I'll go down fighting."

And the light burned all night. A milkman saw it in the early morning, and when the town awakened a disquieting rumor spread. To the Professor's house they went, but no one would respond to the bell. Then they forced a window, opened the door, and admitted a nervous, fearful volunteer committee.

There he was in his library, with a book in his lap. The Professor had stuck it out to the end, had died without admitting defeat. There was a hushed and awkward moment. Some one moved to return the book to a case. Then it was discovered that all of these volumes which stared to the world and gave to the Professor that setting which he loved, were painted on the glass of the cases. The book which was in his lap was his last. They remembered the suitcases and the trips to the city.

"He has been selling them off," some one spoke the feeling of the group. "Little by little he has been parting with them and it broke his heart to do it." Now when they speak of the Professor they picture him copying on the glass of his bookcases the backs and titles of those volumes which he was forced to give up, and say, "He was a queer man, the Professor, but spunky."

One Too Many

Italian Consul Sicilian said at a luncheon in San Francisco:

"We had too many political parties in Italy in the past. Instead of two parties in our house and senate, as you have, we had nearly twenty-two, and so there could be no majority, and nothing could get done. Hence Fascism."

"A political party is a good thing, but you can have too much of a good thing. Thus four aces in a game of cards are splendid, but five cause

NINETY-NINE PERSONS

Out of Every Hundred In Circleville Are in Favor of Deep-Well Instead of Darby Creek or Scioto River Drinking Water.

The editorial published in The Circleville Herald Thursday regarding Circleville's contaminated Water Supply struck a responsive chord in ninety-nine out of every hundred persons in the city up to the present writing.

There are plenty of places, east of Circleville, where absolutely pure drinking water could be secured from deep-wells and where sufficient stand-pipe pressure could be secured for fire protection.

Until further notice from the State Board of Health or Health Commissioner Louis Schneider, people who depend on the water from the Supply Company will be safe in BOILING IT.

A prominent citizen suggests as a precautionary measure, that the health authorities compel the Water Supply company to flush their mains and empty the stand-pipe of Scioto river water.

City Solicitor Weldon per instructions from City Council, visited the State Board of Health Thursday relative to the local water supply. The department informed the Solicitor that Circleville people would be on the safe side of the proposition if they would continue to BOIL IT.

Manager Denman, of the Water Supply Co., informed the Solicitor that the Company was installing a chloradine apparatus at the plant to purify the water.

Double Shift

At a club a man who had applied in vain for membership was being discussed. "I have heard that he is unscrupulous to an unusual degree," said one member. "Unscrupulous?" returned another. "If that fellow were to reform, he would have to put in overtime feeling remorse."—Boston Transcript.

SEAPLANE FALLS WITH TWO NAVAL CADETS

Believed That They Were Unable To Free Themselves From Seat Straps.

Newport News, Va., April 21.—A seaplane from Hampton Roads naval air station, carrying Wilbur Bingham and Richard W. Kemison, naval cadet fliers, fell in Hampton Roads today near Fort Wool. The plane disappeared after striking the water and searchers were unable to find trace of the men.

It was assumed that they had been unable to free themselves from the seat straps. Persons ashore who witnessed the crash believed the plane struck a fishing stake in taking off and that it probably tore a hole in the pontoon.

Bingham is from New York and Kemison from Watertown, Pa. They had made several short flights around the naval base before the crash.

ROBS NAVIGATION OF ITS TERRORS

Formula Makes Sun Observations Unnecessary.

Washington.—Many stirring tales have been suggested by the terrors which beset shipwrecked seamen, unable to determine their position.

Their plight has usually been due to inability to observe the sun at noon, solar time. Now, however, naval authorities in all parts of the world are showing great interest in a formula worked out by Rev. Alan S. Hawkesworth of the Protestant Episcopal church, who served as a mathematician in the navy's bureau of ordnance during the World war.

"By sextant observation on the two stars forming the pointer of the Great Bear, or the uprights of the Southern Cross," he explains, "a navigator can tell his exact position at any moment during the night. And castaway sailors with no sextant or other instrument can approximately tell their position within ten or fifteen miles, thus avoiding the horrors of aimless drifting."

"In the northern hemisphere, for instance, imagine a huge clock face around the Pole star, with twelve above and six below—in the usual fashion. Take as our hour hand upon this imaginary clock face the stars called the 'pointers' and the Great Bear or Dipper.

"Read the hour indicated thereby, and add to it the number of months, and fractions of the month, elapsed since January 1. Double this sum, and subtract it from 25 1/4 or 28 1/4 or 4 1/4, the test for which of these three constants we must use being that the remainder must be positive, yet less than 24. The result will be the true solar time—reckoned from midnight—with 12 to 24 for p. m. time."

Howard started last Friday to build-

Death Knells

"Customs of Mankind" says that the ringing of bells or death knells for the deceased is very ancient. Bells themselves are very old, dating back many centuries before Christ—indeed, going back even farther than the biblical record. In ancient times bells were rung only when important people died, but with the coming of Christianity it was the custom to ring death bells "for all good Christians."

Provide for Education

In preparing a budget, the sum for education varies with the ages and needs of the family. It should include tuition, carfare, textbooks and supplies. The family which has caught the big spirit of budgeting will plan in advance for college years when the educational demands are heavy.

AMUSEMENTS

Buster Keaton has taken his frozen face into the prize ring. At least, he masquerades as a pugilist, gets himself involved in a peck of trouble and finally has to fight the world's champion. And what a fight it is!

The famous comedian's hilarious venture into the realms of fistiana forms the basis of the plot of "Battling Butler," Keaton's latest picture now showing at the Met theater. Heralded at Buster's crowing achievement in laugh provoking, "Battling Butler" is living up to its promise by convulsing audiences at every performance.

"Battling Butler" is different; it has as absorbing plot and is invested with elaborate settings that would do credit to the biggest cast, including captivating Sally O'Neil, Snitz Edwards, Tow Wilson, Francis McDonald, Mary O'Brien, Eddie Bordon and Buddy Fine is excellent.

The comedy gives Buster the opportunity to again show his versatility. He portrays a rich young idler who falls in love and then has to pose as a prize fighter in order to win the girl, whose family believes him to be weakling because of his fine clothes, valet and luxurious surroundings. The comedian takes the name of "Battling Butler," but when the real "Battler" appears on the scene, Buster finds himself hopelessly tangled in the web of deception. How he finally triumphs and whips the champion in a vicious battle that makes the fight in the original "Spoilers" look like a petting party, provides a sensational climax in which thrills vie with mirthful moments.

"Battling Butler" was produced by Joseph M. Schenck for Metro-Goldwyn release.

How Do You Choose Shoes?

Do you select shoes which will be smart and becoming and entirely suited to your needs?—or simply because they happen to be the newest fad?

In a season when so many styles are brought forth, it is very wise to choose your shoes for definite purposes, or to wear with certain costumes. For, after all, being "well dressed" depends upon your own attractiveness. And clothes, or shoes chosen in that way, will always give greater pleasure.

Writing by Wireless

It will soon be possible for messages transmitted by wireless telephone and telegraph to be reproduced in facsimile. For over a year experiments have been conducted by Mr. G. M. Wright, an Englishman, who now announces that his system is nearly complete. Wireless messages will soon be transmitted and received in the sender's handwriting.

This method will result in a great saving in time and lessen costs, for instead of preparing and developing the sensitive plates by which the present photograph and facsimile writing is transmitted, it will be possible to place the original writing direct into the transmitting apparatus. CIRCLEVILLE EAGLESReady For Plain City Invasion Next Sunday.

For the first time in the history of base ball, the Plain City club will invade Circleville and battle the F. O. E. team. The Plain City entry is picked by the experts to be one of the top-notchers in the Central Ohio League this year. On their roster are such stars as Frank Nesser, Bob Rapp, Mike Albanese, Emmett Near, Jackson and Abbie Burgoon. If the Eagles can turn back this club they can be expected to finish in the first division this season.

With the signing of Stanley Pratt, of Lancaster, for third base, the F. O. E. have completed one of the best clubs ever to represent old Roundtown.

Local fans are back of the club this year as they have never been before and one of the largest crowds ever to witness a game in Circleville is expected at Mason's Park next Sunday.

The new uniforms will be ready for Sunday's game and the club will make a very attractive appearance when they take the field.

The lineup for Sunday's game will be as follows:

WAS THE WATCH YOU CARRY NEW... WHEN HANSOMS RULED THE STREETS?

A watch may never lose a second yet be many years slow

The owner of such a watch may never miss a train or an appointment but it is the one false note in his modern makeup, probably the only thing he has that stamps him as a bit old-fashioned, a trifle behind the times. And yet a new and modish Elgin can be had at a moderate sum. Slipped into your pocket, or strapped on your wrist, it will win and hold your affection as no other watch possibly can. For Elgin is conceded to be the world's standard for watch integrity.

THE WOMAN'S WRIST WATCH, in a case of 14-karat solid white gold, is priced at $600. THE MAN'S WATCH may be had in a 14-karat gold-filled case of white or green tone. Sells for $40. We will show these and other Elgins to you gladly. No other watch is offered in so generous an assortment of styles nor at a price range so liberal.

CLOUDS SAVE FRUIT

The fact that the sky remained overcast with clouds until 5 o'clock this morning saved the fruit and early vegetables from total destruction. The temperature at 5 p. m. Wednesday, as reported by Dr. H. R. Clarke, the local weatherman, stood at 67 degrees and at the same time last evening it was down to 35 degrees. Yesterday afternoon shortly after two o'clock the sun was shining brightly and a wrap was almost unnecessary and in less than one hour anyone who ventured out without one was wishing for it. "April showers bring May flowers" is an old adage but we have never heard of them bringing such weather before. However, it could have been worse, the sky might have cleared last night and a frost have taken all the fruit. Snow was flying shortly before noon today. A lie makes a quickget-away and never stops to look back.

Plan by State to Light the Heavily Traveled Highways

LIGHTING ROADS MEANS ELECTRICITY ON FARMS

With Poles Placed Along Highways Lines Can Be Strung to Farms at Little Expense.

The possibilities of electricity becoming the cheap and efficient hired man of the farmers of Ohio now rests in a bill before the State legislature which provides for the lighting of the country highways by the state under much the same plan as new roads are built and kept in repair.

If this bill becomes a law, and the farmers are expressing themselves as 100 percent for its enactment, pole lines will be placed along the main highways to carry electricity to light the road. This expense taken care of by the state from the general highway funds, it will be an easy and inexpensive matter to have wires strung from these poles into the farm buildings along the way.

"Advantages of electricity on the farm are hard to enumerate because they are so many," D. C. Ramsower, director of agriculture extension service of Ohio State University, who is interested in the lighting plan both from a safety standpoint and the great help it will be to the farmers, explained. "Right here in Ohio on the Marysville highway, 25 miles from Columbus, a dozen or more farmers are learning first hand what an economical and efficient servant electricity is today. A section about 5 1/2 miles along this highway has been electrified and thus far more than 200 electrical appliances are in use by these farmers. No longer do these farmers have to pump and carry water. They have running water in their barns as well as their houses, some even have bath tubs and water softeners just as they have in the cities. There are no more blue Mondays for the wives of these farmers. Instead of rubbing and scrubbing over hot, steaming tubs, electric washing machines are doing this work.

"Out in the barns electricity is also helping to do the chores, pumping the water for the cattle, milking the cows, grinding the feed, in fact portable motors which can be easily moved about any place, are doing much of the hard work.

"Then when darkness arrives, instead of all members clattering around the dim light of the kerosene lamp, always dangerous and many times foul smelling, these farmers merely push a button in the wall and like magic their rooms are flooded with light.

"These are but a few of the labor savers and modern conveniences on these farms right here in Ohio," Mr. Ramsower continued. "To some, I suppose, these things will sound extravagant. But that is not the case and the farmers out on the Marysville highway will bear me out in declaring from practical use they are convinced electricity is the farmer's most reliable and cheapest hired man.

Not Named From "Weed"

It is sometimes thought that Port Tobacco river took its name from tobacco, in which a thriving business was done on this river. It is said, however, that such is not the case—that the name came from a tribe of Indians who once lived in that vicinity, the Portobacks.

DEMOCRATIC POLITICS DISCUSSED BY MARVIN

Governor Donahey May Seek To Succeed Fess As United States Senator—Martin L. Davey Most Likely Candidate For Governorship If Present Chief Executive Does Not Ask For Fourth Term.

When Thomas E. Dye, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, resigned from the office a few days ago, he gave a partial explanation of his reason in a letter made public. In this he referred in a covert way, to the refusal of Governor Donahey to cooperate with him in a manner he felt was for the best interests of the party. To even the casual reader it was evident that back of the resignation lay a feeling that it was not possible for him and the governor to work together in anything like a spirit of harmony and since the governor would not resign, the thing for him to do, if the Democratic party was not to suffer, was to give up the chairmanship of the executive committee and allow another to assume the burden he was glad to lay down.

It has transpired since the issuance of his letter of resignation and release of the chairmanship duties, that the message which the public read was mild in comparison with what Mr. Dye originally wrote and intended to have printed. It this he was far more outspoken in calling attention to things which had taken place between him and the governor, things of a nature which made it impossible for him to continue at the head of the executive committee. This original copy was read to a number of Mr. Dye's friends and at their suggestion, fearing the effect it would have upon the party at large was blue penciled and delayed until but little of the first red coloring was left.

The resignation, however, was not unexpected to those who have been in intimate association with Mr. Dye for some time. It was known that the relation between him and the governor were strained. It is said he had threatened to resign at different times before he finally took the step but was restrained by those high in the councils of the party, because it was feared the effect upon the rank and file of the Democracy of the state would be had. In difference to their advice he put off what he long felt would be inevitable, until he realized that any further endeavor to establish harmonious relations was useless. Then he resigned. In doing what he did Mr. Dye undoubtedly gave satisfaction to a large number of prominent men in his party who have been waiting for a break between the two leaders and welcomed it as a sign that the leadership of the governor had perhaps had at last been threatened. Out of it all there can hardly be the expectancy that the former chairman will joyously support the governor for another term as chief executive or any other office to which he may aspire. The break between them seems to be final and complete.

This leads to a feeling, which has become generally accepted here as well grounded in fact, that the governor is sincere in his declaration of not seeking another term in his present office but is casting his eye towards the United States senatorship as the successor to Simeon D. Fess, when the term of the latter expires in March, 1929. While the governor has not made open declaration to this intention he has not pulled at the bit or shied when the proposition of his availability was suggested to him but has rather taken to it with good grace and given declaration to the things he would advocate if his path of political preferment ever led to Washington and he found his feet resting beneath a senatorial desk. He would stand for the people as a whole and follow the same guiding star which had always shaped his destinies, that of common honesty and a black eye for those who attempted to put anything over that savored of crookedness or doubt dealing.

Since the governor seems fixed in his determination not to be the only man ever made chief executive in Ohio four times in succession and perhaps influenced by a feeling that in this instance the part of wisdom would be not to test the pulse of the voters, the Democratic leaders are casting eyes around to find a man they feel will have the best chance of carrying the state next year. They have gone thru the list of available men with scrutinizing care and weighed each in the balance to see in what element he failed to turn the scales in the right direction. Unless every sign fails and all the prophets are wrong, the next Democratic nominee for governor will be Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, national representative from the 14th Ohio district. He more than any other seems to meet requirements.

The Republicans are showing a spirit of cooperation and harmony, which has been lacking in the past several state campaigns, especially with regard to the head of the ticket. A disposition is being shown to follow the advice of State Chairman Fred W. Warner, and reach a definite understanding as to the outstanding man to nominate for governor, before the primaries and center all strength on him. There are any number of good and highly qualified candidates mentioned among whom are Congressman James T. Beggs, of the 13th Ohio district; Congressman John G. Cooper, of the 19th district; Myers Y. Cooper nominee in the last election; Colonel Carmi Thompson, nominee in 1924; former Secretary of State Thad Brown; Attorney General Edward Turner, former Supreme Judge George Clark; State Senator Chester C. Bolton and others. The list could be extended indefinitely. But the consciousness of the poor results which follow a large list of candidates and the resultant divisions in the party is making itself manifest and the advisory council has awakened to the realization that harmony is paramount to everything else and if it is attained the chief stumbling block to a victory at the polls has been removed.

DEMOCRATIC POLITICS DISCUSSED BY MARVIN

When Thomas E. Dye, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, resigned from the office a few days ago, he gave a partial explanation of his reason in a letter made public. In this he referred in a covert way, to the refusal of Governor Donahey to cooperate with him in a manner he felt was for the best interests of the party. To even the casual reader it was evident that back of the resignation lay a feeling that it was not possible for him and the governor to work together in anything like a spirit of harmony and since the governor would not resign, the thing for him to do, if the Democratic party was not to suffer, was to give up the chairmanship of the executive committee and allow another to assume the burden he was glad to lay down.

It has transpired since the issuance of his letter of resignation and release of the chairmanship duties, that the message which the public read was mild in comparison with what Mr. Dye originally wrote and intended to have printed. It is he was far more outspoken in calling attention to things which had taken place between him and the governor, things of a nature which made it impossible for him to continue at the head of the executive committee. This original copy was read to a number of Mr. Dye's friends and at their suggestion, fearing the effect it would have upon the party at large was blue penciled and delayed until but little of the first red coloring was left.

The resignation, however, was not unexpected to those who have been in intimate association with Mr. Dye for some time. It was known that the relation between him and the governor were strained. It is said he had threatened to resign at different times before he finally took the step but was restrained by those high in the counsels of the party, because it was feared the effect upon the rank and file of the Democracy of the state would be had. In difference to his advice he put off what he long felt would be inevitable, until he realized that any further endeavor to establish harmonious relations was useless. Then he resigned. In doing what he did Mr. Dye undoubtedly gave satisfaction to a large number of prominent men in his party who have been waiting for a break between the two leaders and welcomed it as a sign that the leadership of the governor had perhaps had at last been threatened. Out of it all there can hardly be the expectancy that the former chairman will joyously support the governor for another term as chief executive or any other office to which he may aspire. The break between them seems to be final and complete.

This leads to a feeling, which has become generally accepted here as well grounded in fact, that the governor is sincere in his declaration of not seeking another term in his present office but is casting his eye towards the United States senatorship as the successor to Simeon D. Fess, when the term of the latter expires in March, 1929. While the governor has not made open declaration to this intention he has not pulled at the bit or shied when the proposition of his availability was suggested to him but has rather taken to it with good grace and given declaration to the things he would advocate if his path of political preferment ever led to Washington and he found his feet resting beneath a senatorial desk. He would stand for the people as a whole and follow the same guiding star which had always shaped his destinies, that of common honesty and a black eye for those who attempted to put anything over that savored of crookedness or doubt dealing.

Since the governor seems fixed in his determination not to be the only man ever made chief executive in Ohio four times in succession and perhaps influenced by a feeling that in this instance the part of wisdom would be not to test the pulse of the voters, the Democratic leaders are casting eyes around to find a man they feel will have the best chance of carrying the state next year. They have gone thru the list of available men with scrutinizing care and weighed each in the balance to see in what element he failed to turn the scales in the right direction. Unless every sign fails and all the prophets are wrong, the next Democratic nominee for governor will be Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, national representative from the 14th Ohio district. He more than any other seems to meet requirements.

The Republicans are showing a spirit of cooperation and harmony, which has been lacking in the past several state campaigns, especially with regard to the head of the ticket. A disposition is being shown to follow the advice of State Chairman Fred W. Warner, and reach a definite understanding as to the outstanding man to nominate for governor, before the primaries and center all strength on him. There are any number of good and highly qualified candidates mentioned among whom are Congressman James T. Beggs, of the 13th Ohio district; Congressman John G. Cooper, of the 19th district; Myers Y. Cooper, nominee in the last election; Colonel Carmi Thompson, nominee in 1924; former Secretary of State Thad Brown; Attorney General Edward Turner, former Supreme Judge George Clark; State Senator Chester C. Bolton and others. The list could be extended indefinitely. But the consciousness of the poor results which follow a large list of candidates and the resultant divisions in the party is making itself manifest and the advisory council has awakened to the realization that harmony is paramount to everything else and if it is attained the chief stumbling block to a victory at the polls has been removed.
